I'm Hilda Solis.

I'm the secretary of labor of the United States.

I grew up in the small town of La Puente, California, in the outer suburbs of Los Angeles. We lived in a working-class neighborhood, known for orange groves. My father and my mother were blue-collar workers, doing different kinds of jobs. My father was a man whom you could tell put a lot into whatever he did. All you had to do was look at his hands. He was smart and thoughtful, quiet and kind, and he taught his children that you need to be responsible and independent and work hard, and always to hold your family close and respect other people for who they are and the work that they do.

He was born in Arizona but, as a young child, was taken back with his mother to Veracruz, Mexico. He came up again to work as a young man and found a lot of hardship and discrimination. He ended up finding his way to Los Angeles where he met my mother at a US citizenship class. He always was so proud to be an American and to have things that were American—all of his cars were American-made. When he came home from work, we'd all go into the living room and watch the news. He was an avid learner, and he would read constantly and keep up with current affairs. When he was young and growing up in Mexico, he had a priest who saw potential in him and made an investment in trying to help him get his education, so my father was able to get a little Jesuit training. Mostly my father was self-taught. He'd talk about Socrates and Plato, and he could speak Latin. Now as an adult, I think that was all pretty amazing for someone who didn't have a formal education.

My ideas about justice and public service came from my parents. When my father was a young man, people were coming out of the Depression,

Secretary Hilda L. Solis

A native of California, Hilda Solis served eight years as a member of the House of Representatives. She became secretary of labor in the Obama administration in 2009. She is committed to providing opportunities for working Americans, particularly during a challenging period of economic transformation.

Northwestern Memorial Hospital

BLUHM CARDIOVASCULAR INSTITUTE

Clinical Activities and Outcomes Report 2011

Transforming the Future of Medicine

Provide Comprehensive Cardiovascular Care

Align Research, Technology and Outcomes

Excel Through People, Academics and the Community

A Message from Our Director, Patrick M. McCarthy, MD

At Northwestern's Bluhm Cardiovascular Institute our goal is to achieve superior results for all of our patients and to help them return to normal activities while improving their overall quality of life. We believe that clinical outcomes should be a major consideration in helping patients and referring physicians decide where to seek and refer care.

In 2012–13, U.S. News & World Report ranked Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Cardiology and Heart Surgery program 17th in the nation and ranked Northwestern Memorial Hospital as the only Illinois hospital to be named to the prestigious honor roll of the nation's hospitals.

CBOE Holdings, Inc.

As part of our ongoing relationship with the world's largest options market, Liska designed an annual report to communicate how the company leads in developing diverse financial products, innovative trading technology, options advocacy and investor education.

GSA

The U.S. General Services Administration's Art in Architecture Program commissions American artists to create art for federal buildings. Liska designed multiple brochures to help people understand and appreciate the art and the artist.

Office Revolution

Office Revolution, a furniture dealership representing Teknion and over 200 additional furniture lines, are experts in developing innovative office solutions for businesses across the country. In addition to redesigning their identity, Liska designed and developed their website and other branded materials.

Lincoln Schatz/The Smithsonian

Video artist Lincoln Schatz documented some of the country's most influential individuals for a permanent exhibition at the National Portrait Gallery in Washington DC. Liska designed the accompanying hardcover book, The Network, and cohesively weaved together essays, interview transcripts and layered imagery into a compelling narrative.

Atelier Gary Lee

Liska worked with acclaimed interior designer Gary Lee to translate his vision for a curated collection of the world's best furnishings, accessories and artwork into a comprehensive brand program that includes brand identity, a website, showroom signage and advertising.

Hines/Archstone

Scheduled to open in 2013, this 10-acre mixed-use development will become downtown DC's signature community. As part of the overall branding, Liska designed a brochure to attract retail tenants.

Brininstool + Lynch

Since its founding in 1989, Brininstool + Lynch has been the recipient of 24 Design Excellence Awards from the American Institute of Architects and has completed more than 100 building projects. Liska, proud to have worked with this company since their inception, recently created new marketing materials, posters and evolved their website.

Metropolitan Planning Council

Since 1934, the Metropolitan Planning Council, an independent, nonprofit, nonpartisan organization, has been dedicated to shaping a more sustainable and prosperous greater Chicago region. Liska designs a variety of materials promoting both the organization and their mission.

U.S. Equities

U.S. Equities is committed to providing the finest real estate management services possible. Liska has been involved in creating materials for numerous events and tenant related programs at Willis Tower.

Jeff Kauck Photography

Jeff Kauck's food and still life photography has been featured in magazines, cookbooks, packaging and advertising for more than 20 years. Liska designed a portfolio book that features some of Jeff's most recent and beautiful work.

Solomon Cordwell Buenz

SCB is one of the largest and most respected architecture, interior design and planning firms in the country. Liska helped evolve its identity, focus its marketing practices and recently update their website.

Bluhm Cardiovascular Institute

Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Bluhm Cardiovascular Institute offers comprehensive services and treatments in all areas of cardiovascular care. Liska designed a microsite to highlight Bluhm's nationally recognized clinical excellence, comprehensive programs and superior clinical outcomes.

Tom Stringer Design Partners

Tom Stringer designs and plans interiors for a broad spectrum of high-end projects including homes, restaurants and yachts. After developing a new visual direction for the brand, Liska designed new marketing efforts to promote the company as a leading designer of luxury interiors.
